

author connie lapallo

place: _____

date: _____

time: _____

In 1609, nearly a hundred women and children left comfortable homes in England for the wilderness of Jamestown. Connie's 13th great-grandmother was among them.

Bringing one young daughter and leaving another in England, Joan Phippen Peirce first endured a hurricane at sea and the loss of her husband's ship — only to find herself thrust into political turmoil and Jamestown's Starving Time. Based on a true story.

connielapallo.com

Recommended by School Library Journal

"...the description of the tempest 'huracan'...is itself alone worth the read..."
- Pleasant Living Magazine

"Exciting historical fiction with unusual emotional depth..."
- The Open Book